My philosophy of teaching is rooted in the belief that Arabic symbolizes identity. It is a tool for thinking, self-expression, and communication in various situations. Above all, Arabic is organized thought. I support my students in achieving what is available to them in general education. I enable them to practice the language in its natural functions and in an appropriate manner while providing them with basic language skills (reading, writing, listening, and speaking) in a balanced way. I also develop my students' critical, analytical, and conversational abilities.

I believe in the power of technology in education. It gives students immediate access to extensive information and resources. Students can conduct research, and access materials beyond traditional textbooks.
